

843,176
participants*

Enhancing access to quality healthcare, particularly primary and preventive care, by improving the supply and distribution of healthcare professionals through community/academic educational partnerships.

Pipeline programs expose students to health careers and develop intent to pursue post-secondary education in primary healthcare professions.

402,578
grades 9-16 participants (many thousands more participated at the K-8 level)

from rural backgrounds

Clinical training

improves readiness, willingness, and ability of health professions trainees to serve in primary care, and rural and underserved community settings.

facilitated 37,559
rotations

As well as 446 residency rotations

24,524

health professions students placed in rural and underserved locations

- 14,882 medical students
- 3,068 nursing students
- 76 behavioral health students
- 895 dental students
- 5,603 associated health professions students

Training sites

 used include:

- 3,721 primary care setting
- 3,944 located in a medically underserved community
- 2,645 located in a rural area

Continuing education programs address key issues in health professional shortage areas by providing health professionals with access to resources that support practice, reduce professional isolation, disseminate best practices, and improve quality of healthcare for medically underserved communities and health disparities populations.

403,039
continuing education participants

employed in medically underserved communities